

Fifteenth Generation

Sir William Mallory of Studley and Hutton

(Sir John¹⁶, Sir William¹⁷, Sir John¹⁸, Sir William, III¹⁹ Sir William²⁰, William²¹, Sir Christopher²², Sir Thomas²³, Sir William²⁴, Sir Richard²⁵, William²⁶, Henry²⁷, Anketil²⁸, Richar²⁹, Geoffrey³⁰, Anschetil³¹, Goisfrid³², Durand³³) was born ca 1498 in Ripon, North Yorkshire, England, died April 27, 1547 in Studley, Yorkshire, England.

The Inquisition Post Mortem of Sir William Mallory is dated of 'xxiii die September' (24th September) in the first year of the reign of 'Edward sexti' (1547), confirming that Sir William Mallory died not long before. The document states it is the 'post mortem Willi[am] Malore Militis (Knight)' and then list of lands and estates in 'Studley', 'Grantley and Wynkesley' and later 'Northallerton', 'Rippon' and 'Nunwyke' (now Nunwick), all in North Yorkshire. Nunwick is located very near to Norton-Conyers, the birthplace of Sir John Norton, Sir William Mallory's father-in-law. As these towns were named after the large families of the area, it may be interesting to trace the relationship (possibility through marriage) between the Mallory, Norton, and Nunwyke families. The name of 'Anne Malore' is then mentioned in the Inquisition, though the surrounding words are heavily abbreviated making it difficult to decipher her precise relationship with the words that follow her name: 'Malore Militis defunct' (Mallory, Knight, the deceased). It is likely that she was his daughter. The name of 'Will Malore' is also repeatedly noted, followed by the word 'fil', confirming that he was the son of Sir William Mallory. The date of Sir William's death is not stated until the penultimate line of the Inquisition: 'Will Malorye...obiit xxvii die Aprilis' (died on the 27th day of April) in the first year of the reign of Edward VI (1547). The document also confirms that 'Cristofore Malorye' was named 'fil et heres' (son and heir) of Sir William Mallory, at the age of 'xxii'. This indicates that Christopher Mallory was born in 1525.

Sir Thomas Windebank (Sir Richard¹⁶, John¹⁷) was born in Haines Hall, Berkshire, England January, 1538, died October 24, 1607 in Scrivelsby, Lincolnshire, England. His body was interred November 25, 1607 in St. Martin, Westminster, London, England.

Sir Thomas Windebank was Clerk of the Signet & Deputy Clerk of the Privy Council. Born at Haines, Hillhurst Parish, Berkshire, England. He was invested as a Knight on 23 July 1603. "He owed his fortunes largely to his Lincolnshire neighbor, Sir William Cecil, who secured his appointment to the fourth stall in Worcester Cathedral in 1569 and sent him, as a travelling companion, to his son, Thomas (afterwards Earl of Exeter). Many of Windebank's letters, describing his vain efforts to keep his charge straight and teach him French, and their travels in France and Germany during 1571 and 1572, are extant in the Public Record Office. He also took every opportunity of sending his patron lemon trees, myrtle trees and tracts on canon and civil law."

After his return, he was made clerk of the signet, and occasionally acted as clerk of the Privy Council. He continued his friendly relations and correspondence with Lord Burghley until the latter's death and, afterwards, with Sir Robert Cecil.

He was knighted by James I on 23rd July 1603, settled at Haines Hill in St. Nicholas Hurst (Berkshire) and died on 24th October 1607. He married Frances, younger daughter of Sir Edward Dymoke of Scrivelsby in Lincolnshire, by whom he left one son, Sir Francis, and three daughters. Of the latter, Mildred (d. 1630) married Robert Reade of Linkenholt near Andover in Hampshire, and was 3x great grandmother of President George Washington.
